RENO'S OPPORTUNITY.

Now that work has been resumed to extend the N. C. & O. Railroad northward, says the Lassen Advocate, there is hope that before stopping they will build on to Madeline Plains to a point about 125 miles northward from Reno. By so doing they will be in position to offer such inducements to shippers that, in addition to other freights, they will secure the shipment of the vast quantity of wool grown in southeastern Oregon and northeastern California. In the past, nearly all the wool grown in that section of country has gone to the San Francisco market over the California & Oregon Railroad, because that was most convenient, but this we hope will soon be changed. For years the wool sheared from sheep ranged in the foothills and the northern end of the Sacramento valley has been concentrated at the thriving town of Red Bluff, where annual sales are made to buyers who congregate there from the East and West. Some of the advantages thus accruing to the grower of wool and the surrounding country is, that the full value of clips goes direct to the seaboard, there to await the pleasure of commission dealers and warehouse owners for its disposition. It is but natural for a commission dealer, who owns a large warehouse in which is stored the wool of a dozen producers, at so much per ton per month until sold, to take all the time he can in which to dispose of it, for the longer it is stored the greater his rent account will be. It is not to be expected that under such circumstances he would be as anxious to sell as though the position of grower and dealer were reversed. Now the advantage to the growers of this section of the country in having all of their product centered at Reno would be that a market place would at once spring up there, the same as at Red Bluff. The quotations tell us that the United States yields no wool that commands so large a price as that from southern Oregon, northern California and the State of Nevada. Hence, it must be of a superior grade, long staple, and good fiber; therefore, if the owners of it will concentrate it at Reno, the spring clip in a given month and the fall clip in the same way, they will command the attendance of manufacturers and buyers, and the point being accessible to all, they can do their own selling, and thus save a nice percentage. Fine warehouses will need to be built at Reno, and of course, many may want to secure advantages for a time from the banks on their stored wool, but there is no reason why Reno business men and capitalists cannot furnish such accommodations of cash and storage as cheaply as any, thereby creating additional business opportunities as that prosperous inland city, and at the same time afford the producers, whose products should naturally center there, to go in person and deal directly with the consumer.

It such a result could be accomplished for all the products of the earth, there would be fewer middle men enriched at the farmers' cost, and greater prosperity for all.

We hope our Nevada friends will unite with us in action on these suggestions, and ere long Reno may become a great wool market, as it has in the past and is now a beef and mutton market.

POINT NOT WELL TAKEN.

If citizens of the United States can be prohibited from voting simply because they are members of a certain church, with equal justice citizens can be prohibited by law from voting unless they do belong to a certain church. Following this theory to its logical conclusion, a union of Church and State is to be apprehended at no distant day.—Eko Independent.

Not good reasoning. The Independent editor evidently had in his mind the Mormon Church when he wrote the above. Members of that institution are prohibited from voting in certain States and Territories, mainly because they hold allegiance to an organization which is itself a union of Church and State. The leaders of that sect claim and exercise as much authority as temporal as in ecclesiastical matters, and in political affairs their mandates are as implicitly obeyed as orders in reference to the religious portion of the Church rule and discipline. All "good" Mormons invariably vote as a unit, and under the direction of their ecclesiastical leaders. If that isn't union of Church and State, it would be difficult to find it in any part of the world. There is no parity between disfranchising the members of a church which exacts allegiance from its followers superior to their fealty to the government of the Nation or State, and restricting the franchise to the membership of a "certain church," which would then occupy precisely the same controlling political position which the Mormon leaders have so long struggled to obtain for their own organization. It might as well be said that because an ex-convict is not permitted to vote, there is danger of the prohibition extending to the Judge that sentenced, the attorney that prosecuted and the jury that convicted him.

The Senate Committee on Postoffice and Post Roads has ordered that the Anti-Lottery Bill be reported to the Senate with the recommendation that it pass. The vote upon this action is said to have been practically unanimous.

The seals in Behring Sea are likely to settle the international question as to the right of other nations to kill them, by leaving those waters. There are not half as many as last year.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Silver State: The State Board of Trade has drafted a new Constitution which is published in the Reno Journal, a large extra edition of which has been printed by the Board for general distribution. It proposes radical changes in the State Government which will materially decrease expenses, and it reduces the number of counties in the State from fourteen to eight.

As a proposition to call a Constitutional Convention will be submitted to the voters at the November election, and it is quite probable that it will receive favorable consideration, the action of the Board in drafting a new fundamental law is timely as it will bring the question prominently before the people.

Some of the changes proposed by the Board will cause local dissatisfaction. This is unavoidable as the consolidation of counties will reduce the number of county seats and a town will naturally object to being deprived of the seat of government.

But doesn't the Board of Trade in drafting this Constitution show what reforms might be accomplished in legislating for Nevada? The Executive Committee of that Board has proved that a few individuals can enact all the laws necessary for the welfare of the people. Instead, therefore, of having a legislative body of sixty members with over half that number of attaches, in session for sixty days biennially, at an expense to the taxpayers of about $60,000, the Board of Trade might be empowered to pass such laws as may be necessary, or the Legislature reduced to one-fourth its present membership.

The Republicans of California have nominated an exceedingly strong ticket.

Accident at Tuscarora.

George Terrill, at work at the 350-foot station of the Navajo, says the Times Review, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon. At that point, it being a pump station, is a large receiving tank for the water from below, and into which the engine exhausts, keeping the water almost to a boiling point. A trap door through the floor of the station covering the tank had been removed for some purpose, and although his attention had been directed to it, Terrill neglected to close it. Attending to the cage, either receiving or sending, up a car, he incautiously walked into the aperture, his arms involuntarily throw out saving him from going entirely through. Although in the water but for an instant, his lower limbs and some portions of his body are badly scalded, so much so that the skin peeled off with the clothing. Although painful and severe his injuries are not considered dangerous.

A SCARED EDITOR.

A rugged farmer stalked into the editor's office with a big whip under his arm. "Do you the editor?" "I am," was the half apprehensive reply.

"Here's two dollars—send me your paper, for life," he said.

"You see," he went on, "our daughter was sick and like to die; she drooped and grew weak and pale, had headaches, no appetite, back ached, hands and feet like ice, couldn't sleep, backed with cough, and we thought she had consumption. No medicine helped her until she tried that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription mentioned in your paper, when she began to mend in no time and is now well and handsome as a rose—but me down as a life subscriber."

Now the editor is looking for another scare. The medicine has cured thousands afflicted as was the farmer's daughter, restoring the female functions to healthy action, and removing the obstructions and suppressions which caused her trouble. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) refunded. It's a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Contains no alcohol or narcotics; no syrup or sugar to ferment in the stomach and cause indigestion.

Of the sixty odd millions of people in the United States all except an insignificant portion of the "odds" have heard or read the wonderful story of Columbus and his discoveries. It is doubtful, however, if sixty odd thousand of this vast aggregation ever saw a copy of the curious signature used by the discoverer of the Americas. In his will the great Christopher says: "My heirs shall sign only with an S with an X under it, and an M with a Roman A over it, and over than are S and a great Y with an S over it; with its lines and points—as is my custom—he shall only write 'The Admiral,' whatever title the king may have conferred upon him."

The usual form of this signature, with "its lines and points" as mentioned in the will, was as follows:

S.

S. A. S.

X M Y

Xpo FERENS—El Amirante

Why the periods were used at the sides of the Ss and not before and following the other letters has been the subject of much discussion. The initials in a straight line are "S. S. A. S. X. M. Y.," which Professor Becher, recalling the fact that it was to Isabella or Ysabella that Columbus owed his chances of carrying out his plans, reads them as: "Servador Sus Alteza Sacras Jesus Maria Isabel." Which would be about as follows if translated into good United States English: "The servant of their sacred highnesses Jesus Mary and Isabel." The last line Professor Dewitt translates as "Christ Bearing (Christopher) the Admiral."—St. Louis Republic.

A Memory from the Plains.

I saw a girlish looking woman holding her husband's arm as both stood enjoying the gorgeous spectacle on the platform in the Madison Square garden the other night. I could not help conjecturing what a flood of memories would have risen to her mind had some one rushed into the amphitheatre and shouted the single word "Injuns!" The couple were an army officer and his wife, and, though you may not all know it, that means that more than once he has been pledged to shoot her at an instant's notice.

It is the rule—the humane law—on our plains that when the savages are on the warpath and a husband and wife are traveling in their country the husband shall kill the wife the moment it becomes evident that she must otherwise fall into the hands of the redskins. Terrible as it is to think of slaying your wife (and only fancy what noble women those wives out there must be) no man would hesitate if he knew that by doing so he could save her from indignities that make death at once a trifle and a joy.

Fancy the situation—if you can put yourself in such a place. As you ride through the wilderness, perhaps with a guard of cavalry or only as part of a wagon train, the declaration of war comes with a rattle of rifle shots from some rocks or grove ahead. Every spur is pressed home, every horse leaps forward, every gun is seen to, and—your wife reins in beside you and says: "Now, remember! I rely on you."

After that one would imagine a ballet in New York would seem quite tame.—Chatter.

The Old Adam.

It is told of a good old fashioned parson in one of the hill towns of western Massachusetts that he gave the following advice to his son, who was about to come to New York to begin a business career: "My son, of course it is always wicked to fight, and as a Christian minister I must warn you against it. But at the same time if you should ever find yourself in a fight—mind, I say, find yourself in a fight, with no way out—always see that the right man is whipped." "But, father," replied the lad, "how shall I know who is the right man?" "The other man, of course," said the old gentleman. "In every crisis of life something must be taken for granted, and in a fight you must always assume that the other fellow deserves to be thrashed." This advice, similar in spirit to that given by Shakespeare, indicates that there may be a good deal of unregenerate human nature even in a quiet country parson.—New York Tribune.

A Conductor's Hard Life.

A street car conductor of a calculating turn of mind said the other day that during ten years of service on the Fourth avenue line he had been poked with pencils and umbrellas about 75,000 times. It is a woman's way to poke the conductor in the ribs with her pencil when she wants the car stopped. This particular conductor estimated that he had averaged about twenty pokes a day for every day of actual service.—New York Times.

A Bit of the Middle Ages.

A curious survival of the Middle Ages was put into practice at Guernsey to stop the public auction of household goods which was disapproved of by the eldest son of the family. The formula uttered by the son is as follows: "Harol! Harol! Harol! A l'ide, mon Prince. On me fait tort!" The sale ceased instantly, and the matter will now come before the royal courts in due course.—Notes and Queries.

When Merchants Have Money.

Salesman—I suppose you will allow me to sell Broke, Upp & Co.?

Principal—I'm somewhat afraid of their credit, Mr. Valise.

Salesman—But you know they failed about a year ago and settled at ten cents.

Principal—Is that so? They must have money. Sell them all you can.—Jewellers' Circular.

Routing the Enemy.

"A friend of mine—a consumptive—was set upon by ten cowboys out in Arizona one day. He fought like a tiger for ten minutes and then his assailants took to flight."

"What did your friend do?"

"Stayed where he was—he had to. They'd killed him."—Chatter.

Reckless Cycling.

There have been quite a number of serious accidents—some attended by fatal consequences—through people being ridden over by cyclists. In all of these cases the evidence goes to indicate excessive speed as the prime cause. There is a pace, especially when going down hill, which practically deprives the rider of all control over his machine. He can guide it, but that is all. As for pulling up quickly, as well might the engine driver of an express train attempt to do so. Nor even in the matter of guiding has the cyclist a free hand. Any large deviation from the straight line of his course would, if he were peeling along at the rate of eighteen or twenty miles an hour, inevitably cause an upset. He has nothing for it, therefore, but to trust to luck and the chapter of accidents, which he does with a sang froid that would be truly admirable were it not so largely tinged with recklessness.

When he mounts to the brow of a steep hill and looks down at the decline stretching out before him he knows perfectly well that if he once allows his steel steed to "take charge" there can be no attempt to pull up until the bottom is reached. Equally aware is he that by timely application of the brake and by "back pedaling" the machine can be kept at a moderate pace, admitting of guidance and of stopping. But because it is a pleasant rush down hill at the speed of a racer without any exertion he takes his feet off the pedals, sets his teeth tight and, to use his own expression, "lets her slide." The result is that if any pedestrian chances to block his way—being perhaps too deaf to hear the warning bell—a fearful collision takes place, and one or the other is killed. Cyclists have yet to learn, apparently, that the responsibility of keeping clear of people on foot rests on the drivers of vehicles.—London Graphic.

In Sleep.

An old resident in Vermont tells the following story, belonging to his past experience as a country postmaster:

It happened one spring when the mud was almost up to the horses' knees that we had no mail for three days. The consequence was that the three days' batch, consisting of nine bags, came in late one night as I was about going to bed. I determined to delay distribution until morning, and fell asleep rather harassed at the thought of so large a task.

Next day I rose early and went into the office to open my mail bags. They were gone! The corner where I always left them was quite empty, and my heart began to beat loud and fast. The mail had been delivered to me, I was responsible for it, and it was not to be found.

Presently, as I stared about, the big drops of sweat gathering on my forehead, I noticed small packages of letters lying in the places where I was accustomed to leave them before sending them out into the several districts by the farmers who came to town. I looked further; the mail was all distributed. Then I turned to the spot where I always threw the empty bags after finishing my work. There they lay, collapsed and empty.

Now you know exactly as much about this story as I know myself. It seems very evident to me that I rose in my sleep, impressed by the unusual task before me, and finished it mechanically. I had never been a sleep walker before and I never did such a thing again.—Youth's Companion.

A Mountain of Salt.

A mass of 80,000,000 tons of pure, solid, compact rock salt, located on an island 185 feet high, which rises from a miserable sea marsh on the route from Brashear to New Iberia, up the river Teche in Louisiana, is one of the wonders of the world. How this island, which contains over 800 acres of excellent land, ever came into existence in such a locality is a matter of conjecture. Vegetation is prolific and the scenery is beautiful and varied. In the center of this island, which is the only solid spot in the vast expanse of sea marsh for miles around, rises Salt peak, the largest body of exposed rock salt in the world. Having never been surveyed, its exact extent is as yet unknown. However, Engineer Brown, who has visited it, says that there is not less than 80,000,000 tons of pure crystal salt in sight. The dazzling clearness of Salt peak forms a striking contrast with somber lagoons, bayous and salt marshes which surround it on all sides.—St. Louis Republic.

A Much Discussed Question.

One of his children had produced a dinner table sensation by offering a grammatical correction of the language used by the head of the house to the effect that the phrase should not be "It is I," but should be "It is me." A challenge of the accuracy of this view brought out the further statement that the educational authorities to which this child owed school room allegiance had determined that "It is him" and "It is her" were not permissible expressions, smacking of vulgarity, but that "It is me" had become established in this country by "usage," and was therefore the correct form. I had an opportunity to refer this matter to the professional educator of whom I spoke the other day, and I confess his reply was a staggerer: "Well, that case has received a great deal of discussion among us,"—Boston Post.

A Newboy's Game.

The newboys frequenting the City Hall park at night have invented a new sort of baseball game, which they play when the "sparrow" policemen are not about. They usually choose the long, brightly lighted wall in front of the city hall for the game, and nearly every night they attract a crowd of pedestrians by their play. The difference between their game and the real game is that instead of throwing and batting a ball they place it on the ground and the boy whose "inning" it is rushes along and kicks the sphere as far as he can, after which he scampers to a base. The rest of the game is the same as baseball, and the little fellows seem to enjoy it hugely.—New York Star.

CHARLEY LAUGHTON.

Nevada's Ex-Lieutenant Governor Keeps up His Luck in the Same Office in Washington.

The Seattle Telegraph of the 11th inst., in an article upon the probability of an extra session of the State Legislature in Washington, and the rumor of Governor Ferry's contemplated resignation, concludes with the following:
"This story was then, and still is, received with considerable suspicion. It was argued that Governor Ferry is too loyal to Senator Squire to become a rival of his, and this would seem reasonable. If, however, Squire should not be strong enough to secure re-election, the Governor may be proposed as an alternative. Certain it is that he has expressed his determination to resign his present office after the close of the next regular session of the Legislature. This would leave about a year and a half of the term unexpired, and Republicans generally say that the Governor would never do this if Lieutenant Governor Laughton still stood next in the line of succession. In this view the project of abolishing the Lieutenant Governorship may be seriously contemplated by the party managers. The alleged connection of the Lieutenant Governor with the school book scandal may lend strength to such a movement. The Post-Intelligencer's Olympia dispatches last week noted that 'it was expected by some that Laughton would be indicted because of his endorsement of the check,' but the Grand Jury failed to indict him; reasoning that he must have been imposed upon and ignorant of the purpose for which the check was given. This is a rather sorry plight for the second officer of the State to be placed in, escaping indictment only on the ground that he was very easily humbugged. A good many hard things have been said about 'Charley' Laughton, but he was never before accused of being a fool. Be all this as it may, the story of the Oregonian will lead interest to the extra session."

For Sheriff.

Billy Caughlin announces himself a candidate for Sheriff, subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention. The Republicans can nominate no better man for the position, nor can the people find one who would more faithfully discharge the duties of the office. He has been here for over twenty years, and his record as a man is without blemish or stain. His word is as good as his bond—he is honest and competent—and if nominated and elected will prove a fearless officer for he has the courage of a lion.

Who Knew Him?

The JOURNAL has received a letter from Smoke Creek in this county stating that on the 2d instant a man was kicked by a mule, receiving injuries from which he died on the 4th. He was working for J. D. Winters, and came to Smoke Creek from Reno about the first of July. No one at the ranch knew him, although a poll-tax receipt found on his person, and dated at Napa, Cal., is made out in the name of Albert Lawrence, or Lawson. He was about 40 or 45 years of age, a native of Denmark, of light complexion and weighed about 140 pounds. If anyone in Reno identifies the deceased by the above description, or knows anything concerning his history, relatives, etc., please communicate to B. W. Russell at Smoke Creek.

—Of the People on—

SATURDAY, AUGUST 16, 1890.

For the purpose of electing delegates to the said
State Convention, the Primary Election to be conducted in compliance with the laws of the State and the instructions of this Committee.

The following test will be required of each and every voter at the said Primary Elections:
"I am a citizen of this State and will support the nominees of the Republican party."

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this committee reaffirms the State and National Republican platform of 1888, including the declaration that "the Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money
and that it condemns all efforts to demonetize silver."

Resolved, That the persistent neglect of Secretary Wisdom to increase the coinage of silver to the maximum of four million dollars per month, coupled with his attempt to influence Congressional legislation so as to perpetuate silver demonetization, is a shameful violation of the silver plank of the National Republican platform, an attack upon the rights and interests of the miners, farmers and workers of the land, and an act of party perjury that should call for his retirement from the councils of an Administration which is pledged to help and not to hinder the demonetiza-tion of silver.

Resolved, That the Republican party of this State is in favor of free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver; that it holds to this principle as a test of party faith and a test of party allegiance;
that it will persist in no abandonment or modification of this doctrine; that let whoever will prove recalcitrant to the principle of bimetallicism it will remain steadfast thereto, and that it invites all citizens of Nevada who favor the principle of the inalienable inalienable law of 1873 by which silver was demonetized, and who desire the establishment of free and unlimited coinage as the law of the United States of America, to join in electing delegates to a Republican State Convention.
